Support sought for historic home preservation

BY BOB DEMAREE

Indiana Landmarks wants to save a house in Hanover and is asking the Jefferson County Commissioners for help in doing that at their meeting Thursday.

Greg Sekula, representing the Southern Regional Office of Indiana Landmarks, asked for $7,500 to help save a two-story house located at 263 East Main Street in Hanover, just across the street from the town's post office.

The Commissioners tabled any action on the request until their next meeting scheduled for Dec. 21, to research where the funds might come.

"We are interested in doing something," said Commissioners President David Bramer. "Oftentimes it's focused strictly in Madison for historic preservation, but we have an opportunity to help folks out there" in another part of the county. "When you have places like this, you try to do something to clean it up."

"We have extensive history working here in Jefferson County over the years with a variety of projects" including bringing the structural engineer after the 2009 fire to the Jefferson County Courthouse, Sekula said. "One of our keystone programs at Indiana Landmarks is working to save endangered historic properties" including now "to save one of the beleaguered houses of Hanover."

He said Indiana Landmarks is working with the Town of Hanover along with support from Hanover College "to help improve conditions in the community to be attractive for students in the college." The organization has met with Lake Lambert, president of Hanover College, and Keith Mefford, Hanover clerk-treasurer, "to come up with a strategy to hopefully find a preservation sensitive buyer for this house."

Man convicted in Predator Net sentenced

Mothersbaugh gets 9 years at IDOC

BY MARK CAMPBELL

A Jennings County man who was convicted of child solicitation in a bench trial last month was sentenced Monday to nine years at the Indiana Department of Correction in connection with a Madison Police Department internet sting in the summer of 2020.

Dennis Lloyd Mothersbaugh

Dennis Lloyd Mothersbaugh, 41, of North Vernon, Indiana, was charged with soliciting an underage girl for sex on social media as part of MPD's Operation Predator Net that arrested 20 men total over a period of several weeks.

Jefferson Circuit Judge D.J. Mote found Mothersbaugh guilty of Child Solicitation, Sexual Misconduct with a Minor, Possession of Marijuana, Possession of Paraphernalia and Resisting Law Enforcement on Nov. 11. At Monday's sentencing hearing, Mote vacated the Sexual Misconduct with a Minor conviction and sentenced Mothersbaugh to nine years on the Child Solicitation conviction, a Level 4 felony; and 30 days each, concurrent, on the marijuana, paraphernalia and resisting arrest charges, all misdemeanors.

Mothersbaugh thought he was meeting a 14-year-old girl for sex when he traveled to Johnson Lake on Madison's hilltop to meet her in August 2020. However, when he pulled into the pre-arranged meeting place, Mothersbaugh encountered police officers. When he was ordered out of his vehicle and as officers attempted to restrain him, he forcefully resisted.

"Mr. Mothersbaugh was clearly aware that the young teen he believed he was conversing with on social media was just 14 years old," said Jefferson County Prosecutor David Sutter. "He initiated the conversation with the profile and the victim's age was discussed."

During his conversations, which actually were with MPD detectives working undercover, Mothersbaugh

Jefferson COVID-19 death toll increases to 105

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Jefferson County recorded another COVID-19 death on Friday — the community's 105th during the pandemic — as cases of the coronavirus continue to rise and the positivity rate increases.

In information released by the Indiana Department of Health, Jefferson County now has had 5,856 positive cases of COVID-19 during the pandemic and 105 deaths. The county's positive cases have increased by 96 over the last two days including 60 in the last day. The county's positivity rate is now 11.3%.

On Thursday, Jefferson County Health Department Administrator Tammy Monroe reported on increased incidences of COVID-19, noting that "as colder weather approaches and we start seeking indoor activities and gatherings the Jefferson County Health Department highly recommends masking up while indoor public places or gathering with those outside your immediate household."

Indiana has had more the 10,000 new positive cases of COVID-19 in the last two days — 5,653 on Thursday and 5,659 on Friday. Indiana's overall total is now 1,118,335. Meanwhile, the state had 57 new deaths due to COVID-19 in the last day, increasing the overall total to 17,117. The state's positivity rate is now 13.1%.

3 people facing drug charges after traffic stop

BY THE COURIER STAFF

A Madison hilltop traffic stop on Wednesday by Madison Police resulted in the arrest of three Jefferson County residents on drug charges.

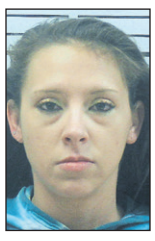
Madison Patrolmen Curtis Shelpman and Josh Nolan executed the stop on Wilson Avenue just north of Clifty Drive.

A passenger in the car, Nicholas Dwayne Martinez, 24, of Hanover, was discovered wanted on an active arrest warrant for parole violation.

A search of the vehicle found the driver and both passengers to be in possession of narcotics.

The driver, Felicity Marie Forsythe, 22, of Madison, was charged with Possession of Methamphetamine, a Level 6 felony; Dealing in Marijuana, a Class A misdemeanor; and Possession of Paraphernalia, a Class C misdemeanor.

Martinez, was arrested on the active warrant and charged with Possession of Methamphetamine, a Level 6 felony; and Possession of Paraphernalia, a Class C misdemeanor.



Stephanie Mae Wells

Felicity Marie Forsythe

Nicholas Martinez

A second passenger in the car, Stephanie Mae Wells, 24, of Madison, was charged with Possession of Methamphetamine, a Level 5 felony; Unlawful Possession or Use of a Legend Drug, a Class A misdemeanor; and Possession of Paraphernalia, a Class C misdemeanor.

Forsythe, Martinez and Wells were all lodged in the Jefferson County Jail without bond.

Madikson Capt. Season Jackson assisted with the arrests.

KENTUCKY STATE POLICE INVESTIGATING BODY FOUND IN GALLATIN COUNTY

Kentucky State Police and the Gallatin County Sheriff's Officer are conducting a death investigation into the discovery of a badly decomposed body of a man on Boone Road near Sparta, Kentucky.

The body was discovered at approximately 5:50 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 30, with troopers and detectives responding to the scene to investigate.

An autopsy was scheduled for the following morning, on Wednesday, Dec. 1, and the man has been identified as Kenneth Beach,, 43, of Sparta. The investigation is ongoing and being conducted by KSP Post 5 detectives.

State police were assisted at the scene by the Gallatin County Sheriff Office, Warsaw Police Department and the Gallatin County Coroner.

COLUMBUS FATHER CHARGED IN DEATH OF 2-YEAR-OLD DAUGHTER

The father of a 2-year-old girl whose body was found in a debris field in the East Fork of the White River was charged Wednesday, Dec. 1, with felony neglect of a dependent resulting in death.

Jeremy Sweet, 39, of Columbus, Indiana, was also charged with unlawful possession of a syringe and for being a habitual offender, Bartholomew County Sheriff Matthew Myers said.

Sweet and his daughter, Emma, were last seen together in his pickup on Nov. 24 and were reported missing by family members the following day. Emma was found Sunday morning in the river about 2.5 miles downstream from where the truck was found. Results of an autopsy are not expected for four to six weeks and according to court records the autopsy of Emma Sweet could not determine whether hypothermia or drowning was the cause of her death.

Bartholomew County Sheriff Matt Myers said Sweet originally provided investigators with multiple stories of what had occurred but that "none of them match."

According to court documents, detectives spoke again with Sweet on Monday, the day after his daughter's body was found. Police reported that during the interview Sweet admitted to using methamphetamine and marijuana on Nov. 24, the last day Emma's mother reported seeing both Jeremy and her daughter.

Sweet is currently being held in the Bartholomew County Jail after being hospitalized for hypothermia and frostbite following his discovery Friday morning in his submerged truck by duck hunters. He is facing Level 1 and Level 6 felonies being held on a $1.2 million bond.

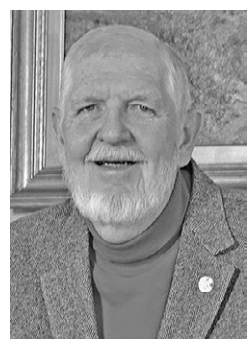
James M. DeWine

August 22, 1944

November 28, 2021



James Michael DeWine, 77, of Bellingham, Washington and Naples, Florida, passed away Sunday, November 28, at home in Bellingham. He succumbed to a very rare, aggressive form of cancer, so his battle was short lived.

He was born in Xenia, Ohio on August 22, 1944, the son of Pauline and Edward DeWine Sr. He was the last surviving sibling of five children: Ed DeWine, Jerome DeWine, Elizabeth Anne Dornhuber, and Therese Hummel.

Mike was married to Sue DeWine, and they have two children: Leigh Anne DeWine in Seattle and James DeWine in Bellingham, both of whom were with him constantly in his final weeks. Family members include Leigh Anne's spouse Dave Roth and their two children Cora (7 years old) and Kate (5 years old) and James' spouse Katie DeWine, and their two children Hattie (2 years old) and Ruth (2 years old). Mike was very proud of his four granddaughters and instilled in them a love of science, insatiable curiosity, and appreciation of the natural world. A close family friend, Gloria Stewart, was with the family in Mike's final days, supporting Mike and Sue in every way possible. Mike's many nieces and nephews are too numerous to list, but they should know that he cared deeply about all of them, family being paramount in his life.

Throughout his life, Mike served as a mentor to others. He was kind, loving, and a lifelong teacher. Many of his closest friends learned from his vast knowledge of the word in general, but especially of science. Perhaps he could have been a Jeopardy champion! He certainly loved playing it at home. He leaves behind close friends in all corners of the country, but particularly in those places he called home: Bellingham, WA, Naples, FL, Hanover, IN, Athens, OH, Centerville, OH, Oxford, OH and Xenia, Ohio.

Mike received his BA and MA from Miami University in Science Education, and his ABD from Indiana University, in Earth Science and Education. He believed in hands-on learning and instilled that in all the students he taught over the years. He worked in the Centerville, Ohio school system as an educational specialist and for The Ohio University in College of Osteopathic Medical training doctors to become teachers for over 20 years. At Marietta College and Hanover College he and Sue worked as a team in upper administration. Especially at Hanover College, as the spouse of the president, Mike worked with the catering staff and the landscaping staff to make two important aspects of a student's experience better: the food and the spectacular beauty of the Hanover College campus.

A small family celebration of life will be held in Bellingham on December 4. For those he loved, please toast Mike this weekend with a Harp beer, one of his favorites. Cards are welcome (4737 Spring Brook St., Bellingham, Washington, 98226) and donations to honor him can be made to the Templeton Scholars Program at Hanover College. Mike believed strongly in equity and equal opportunity, particularly in respect to education. The Templeton Scholars Program provides scholarships to students who have worked to bridge gaps among economically, socially, and racially diverse groups within their communities and is a program championed by Mike and Sue in their time at Hanover.

Kentucky author and 'Merry Prankster' McClanahan dies

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON — Ed McClanahan, a Kentucky author, teacher and friend of counterculture icon Ken Kesey, died Saturday at his home in Lexington, according to his wife. He was 89.

McClanahan lived in Lexington with his wife Hilda, who remembered him as a "great man."

"Everybody knows what an icon he was," she said Wednesday. "I miss him."

McClanahan was born in Brooksville in Bracken County. In 1962, he met Kesey, author of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," and Kesey's band of Merry Pranksters while at Stanford University as part of a creative writing fellowship, according to the Lexington Herald-Leader.

The communal travelers' exploits were chronicled in Tom Wolfe's 1968 book "The Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test." When he was with the LSD-fueled jesters, McClanahan was known as "Captain Kentucky" and would frequently wear costumes, an experience he recalled in his 1985 memoir, "Famous People I Have Known."

McClanahan's first book, a coming-of-age novel entitled "The Natural Man," was published in 1983, and McClanahan was inducted into the Kentucky Writers Hall of Fame in 2019. His last two books were published last year. His cause of death was not reported.

"Ed was one of the best writers of my time," a friend of McClanahan's, Kentucky author Wendell Berry, told the newspaper. "He was almost perfect in the way he made his sentences, the way he heard his sentences. He had a very large sense of humor and it came to rest on his language."

While working on a book about honky-tonks in America, McClanahan wintered in Port Royal, Kentucky, near Berry's Henry County farm. He also appeared at book readings and other cultural events in the area including readings at the Carroll County Public Library in Carrollton, where his skills as a storyteller brought the characters in his books to life with a dramatic and comedic flare.

McClanahan also taught writing at multiple universities, including Stanford University, Oregon State University, the University of Kentucky, Northern Kentucky University and the University of Montana.

PACE approves final '21 applications

BY BOB DEMAREE

While discussing the final round of Preservation and Community Enhancement Program (PACE) grant applications for 2021 on Wednesday, Madison Mayor Bob Courtney noted it's been a phenomenal year in terms of what has been achieved by the program.

Courtney said the city has provided $407,000 in matching funds along with $183,000 in county dollars to stimulate about $2 million in private investment — much of that in blighted neighborhoods.

"2021 has been our largest investment year and return in the program's history," Courtney said. "It's about half-a-million dollars that has produced $2 million in private investment,"

He noted that's about a 4-to-1 ratio and the return has been "a game-changer for us" in terms of "our broader blight elimination plan." He cited PACE as the key ingredient because it leverages public dollars with private investment.

"As you look at all the homes that have been rehabilitated across the community, it's making a tremendous difference across the community, Courtney said, noting the benefits of increased property values and a reduction in crime as blighted areas see investment and improvement.

"That's why we are so grateful for everybody who is making a personal investment in rehabilitating these properties because it has a dramatic impact on the neighborhoods," Courtney said. "The city is continuing to make an investment in its goal for a clean, safe, beautiful Madison, and while we have one end of the spectrum which is incentives, the other end of the spectrum is code enforcement."

Courtney said Madison does have properties that are "dilapidated, dangerous, unsafe, unkempt where we have not been able to attract the right partnership from an incentive perspective. The city has been lagging for years in regards to code enforcement" but that will be a priority for the city in 2022 and is part of the city's more comprehensive blight elimination plan along with continuing to provide incentives for city residents to rehabilitate structures.

He said the work will target homes on the hilltop and downtown. "Most people don't think about the hilltop being historic but there are now a lot of older homes up there now that are 50 to 75 years old. Some of them are in different states of condition" ... "having a strategy that's city-wide is great for the city."

On Wednesday four PACE applications were approved by the PACE board with recommendation for final approval from the Board of Public Works and Safety at its meeting on Monday. Nicole Schell, director of planning, noted that each of the four properties scored high enough to qualify for the matching grant, and with just $111,000 available in PACE funding, there was sufficient money to fund the more than $60,000 requested.

The PACE board approved two dilapidated structure grants for $25,000 each — one from Chad Gray at 124 East Street and another from Cynthia Stewart at 812 Walnut Street for $25,000. Both will be doing exterior work, but also structural and interior work in order to make the building safer.

The board also approved an application for $5,045 by Georgia Hall for work on a house at 506 Jefferson Street and a $5,750 Dangerous Structure Grant for Scott Axline to demolish a building at 707 Walnut Street. Schell said that is the first property in the city to receive the grant for demolishing an unsafe building, which include an agreement to rebuild.

Axline talked about the poor condition of the 707 Walnut Street home. "That house has got to come down," Axline said, noting "If I took four of my big buddies out there, we could push that house over. I've never even walked all the way back through that house because about half-way through I'm afraid of falling through the floor."

"It's going to be a good project," PACE Chairman Bill Ohlendorf said. "The area is going to like to see that structure gone, and then to have the new building that's going to be nice, too."

Axline said he plans to replace the existing structure with a 1,000-square--foot, two-bedroom, two-bath shotgun-style residence in a more contemporary design.

"My wife and I have bought and rehabbed properties that are historic for 30 years," Axline said, noting they moved to Madison two years ago and also own the house 713 Walnut.

"If you drive down Walnut Street, it's got some of the best architecture in town. It can be a beautiful street," said Axline. "In those two or three blocks, there looks to be six rehabs going on which is great ... It has a bright future. In five years, you won't recognize that street, but these derelict properties have to be taken care of ... That's what we do, we fix homes. We've been doing it for years."

Courtney thanked Axline for taking on the property at 707 Walnut Street. "We hope that you can acquire the property next door because that is in desperate need of a restoration as well," he said, noting that Walnut Street is a targeted revitalization area by the city. "There's beautiful architecture down there."

Link Ludington represented Stewart, a Madison native who lives in Fort Myers, Florida, in her application at 812 Walnut Street as he is working as an advisor in rehabilitation work at the property.

"I think this is another good application in an area that needs the investment," said Courtney.

Ludington said the house not only has structural issues, but also much work is need in the interior. "Until I went inside I had no conception" of the poor condition, said Ludington, adding the home had been vacant for many years.

Ludington said plans for the exterior rehabilitation call for original features to be reinstated after the exterior had been altered during a modernization. He said there is a 1988 photo in which the home still had its original windows and the stick-style detail on the front porch, but then it "went downhill from that point on." The plan is to replicate the original exterior appearance as much as possible.

"When all of that gets done, that's going to be beautiful along there," Ohlendorf said, looking at photos of the structures.

Gray said three-quarters of the house at 124 East Street will be demolished including an unusable front portion. He is keeping the rear two-story portion of the building — the camel-back portion of the shotgun house — and will be rebuilding the front single story portion with a new structure to be built in the rear, already approved by the Historic District Board of Review.

"Thank you for making some great investments across downtown, and it's made a difference in neighborhoods." Courtney said.

Although he has done multiple restorations in downtown Madison, Gray said this is the first time he's applied for a PACE grant because the timeline didn't work out on his other projects. "I was in a hurry to get them done and didn't want to wait," he said, noting that with the condition of the 124 East Street property it "would be hard to justify" financially doing the work without a PACE grant.

Ohlendorf agreed noting that even with PACE the property "is more of an investment for you than it is for the city."

Hall, who has lived at 506 Jefferson Street for more than 20 years, said there is damage to the interior of building from water seeping through walls from deteriorated mortar between bricks. The grant provides funding for exterior work to make the repairs by tuckpointing the house.

In other business, Phil Mullins received approval for an amendment to his PACE grant at 707 East Main Street. The historic limestone retaining wall under the wrought iron fence in front of his house was damaged during the US 421 Bridge approach project, and Mullins said there is currently a lawsuit against the entities that caused the damage. His original PACE grant included money to fix the wall since he was not sure the process to repair through the Indiana Department of Transportation.

"I just feel the spirit of the city funds is not to help contractors correct their mistakes," Mullins said while asking to shift more of the PACE funds for other elements on the project that were included in his original grant such as paint, repairs to doors, and repairs to shutters rather than funding for the wall repair.

Schell noted there will be three vacancies on the PACE board that need to be filled for 2022. Donnie Vaughn, who was at Wednesday's meeting, is among those who has decided not to return to the board and Courtney expressing his appreciation to Vaughn for his past service.

Some progress was made recently on work to expand the outdoor cages at the Jefferson County Animal Shelter with the pouring of an additional slab of concrete at the shelter site on Hannah Drive on Madison's hilltop. New cages have been ordered and will be installed soon to provide more outdoor storage for dogs.

PETS OF THE WEEK

The Madison-Jefferson County Animal Shelter currently has a number of dogs, cats and kittens available for adoption and a wish list for those who plan to play Santa Paws this Christmas.

Shawn is a young, white husky mix with plenty of energy and unfazed by a little cold weather so he's looking for a big yard to play in the snow this winter.

John Deere, a black, short coat Chihuahua mix, is an older dog who still loves toys and play time. He needs a nice warm home for the holidays, since his fur isn't all that thick.

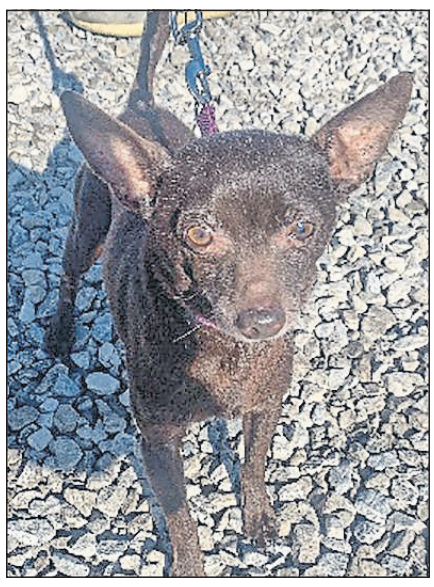
Both dogs — and many others — are looking for furever homes for the holidays and beyond.

If you're interested in Shawn or John Deere, contact the Jefferson County Animal Shelter via email, phone, or even Facebook! The shelter has plenty of other cats and dogs available for adoption.

In addition, the shelter has assembled a holiday wish list of items needed for those who intend to play Santa Paws this Christmas, including:

- Dry and canned kitten food
- Royal Canin mother and kitten soft and dry food
- Clay (non-clumping) cat litter
- Laundry detergent
- 10 gallon or larger totes with lids for storing bedding, toys and other items.
- Heavy duty leashes (non-retractable!)
- Canned cat food
- Dry puppy food

SHAWN



JOHN DEERE

- Dog and cat toys (washable material)
- Aluminum cans or other metals to be recycled to raise money for the shelter medical fund

In addition, you can sponsor an animal, make a donation to the medical fund, or sponsor a spay/neuter by making checks payable to Jefferson County Animal Shelter or JCAS.

For adoptions or more information on donating, call the shelter at 812-273-1788 or email at animal.shelter39@jeffersoncounty.in.gov to make an appointment. Animals that are neutered and vaccinated for rabies are listed on sisaveapet.com if you would like to see what other animals are available for adoption.

Those with missing pets can call or email a complete description of the pet, when and where it was last seen, the owner's name and contact information, and a picture of the pet. Pets are held for three days before they are made available for adoption. Animals should not be abandoned outside of the shelter or dropped off at the shelter after hours. County zoning ordinance to be updated in 2022

BY BOB DEMAREE

An update of Jefferson County's zoning ordinances will take place in 2022 with the county working with the same Indianapolis design group that prepared its Comprehensive Plan earlier this year.

Commissioners President David Bramer said at Thursday's meeting that Taylor Siefker Williams Design Group, LLC, of Indianapolis, will assist with the project. Bramer, who also serves on the Plan Commission, said the intention is to only update portions of the ordinances where updating is needed.

Commissioners President David Bramer said at Thursday's meeting that Taylor Siefker Williams Design Group, LLC, of Indianapolis, will assist with the project. Bramer, who also serves on the Plan Commission, said the intention is to only update portions of the ordinances where updating is needed.

He said based on discussions with the consultant "if you can look at your ordinance right now and know specific sections that need to be updated, then we can reduce our effort" rather than update all of the ordinances. "I think we're going to head that way."

In other business, the Commissioners:

- Approved a limited use agreement between the county and the City of Madison that would allow for sharing information through the iWorQ software, designed for governmental agencies to track building permits, planning, zoning and more. The limited use agreement provides use by the City of Madison for the GIS service from WTH Technology to be used in conjunction with the iWorQ software being used by the city.
- Approved a Hazard Mitigation Plan, which is a FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency) plan, with Christopher B. Burke Engineering of Indianapolis. Troy Morgan, Emergency Management Director, said FEMA provides $30,000 in grant money, which he said is a 75% to 25% match with the county providing $6,800. Morgan said the county's match can be in-kind, so it will use time, materials, facility use and all other things done in planning efforts necessary in executing the plan. Additionally a GIS limited use agreement was approved with Christopher B. Burke Engineering as part of the plan execution.
- Approved a resolution that allows County Highway Superintentent Bobby Phillips authorization for execute county agreements with the Indiana Department of Transportation for contracts the Commissioners do not sign.
- Bramer noted that at the next meeting on Jan. 21 the board will need to pass a redistricting ordinance for Commissioner and County Council districts following the 2020 Census. "Looking at information from the state level there doesn't seem to be huge difference" in population shifts in the county, but he will get more information while preparing that ordinance.

referred to the profile as "Sexy Butt," discussed taking her on a motorcycle ride and referenced the "pleasure" he would give her.

"This case should ring a warning bell for all parents," said Sutter. "There are very dangerous predators out there who every day try to engage young teens in harmful and illegal activities. Social media platforms have become an important part of our lives, but we all must remain alert to the dangers they can pose."

Mothersbaugh has previous convictions in Jennings, Jackson and Bartholomew counties on charges ranging from marijuana possession to driving while intoxicated. He also made national news in 2018 for his arrest and guilty plea for assault and battery during the 2017 "Unite the Right" rally in Charlottesville, Virginia.

SUPPORT

"There's a great deal of need for the property," Sekula said, noting the $7,500 request would be used for getting dumpsters and hiring workers to assist with the cleanup of the building to make the property a little more presentable for marketing purposes. The building also has structural concerns that need to be addressed including "a gapping hole in a back of the one-story section that we want to get patched," he added. "Our goal is to clean the house out, take out the old carpeting and some of the paneling, and to expose the original good bones of the house which is a great 1855 Greek Revival style house."

Sekula said that any time Indiana Landmarks is involved in a real estate transaction, covenants are attached to the building requiring a future buyer to present a rehabilitation plan and to be certain the rehabilitation program restores the historic integrity of the structure. "We will be guiding that process along when we hopefully find a buyer," Sekula said. "That covenant goes with the deed on the property and it extends in perpetuity."

Based on that all subsequent buyers will be bound by that covenant which involves keeping the house in good repair along with an annual inspection by Indiana Landmarks. "We ask them to make repairs over the years. It's a long-term commitment that we have to the property."

Sekula said Jefferson County and Madison are known throughout the state and the nation for their historic preservation efforts. "We're hoping that culture will extend into Hanover as well. There's a lot of good structures there, and I think there's a strong commitment on the part of the town to want to see improvement to preserve some of these endangered historic properties," he said.

Sekula noted that Indiana Landmarks was also involved in the restoration of the Levi Butler House, a circa 1847 house in Dupont. The house, an outstanding example of Greek Revival style, was saved from foreclosure and neglect in 2015, and has now been restored.

"We believe strongly in trying to preserve the heritage of the county and that extends beyond Madison to include other communities here in the county," Sekula said.

The house targeted in Hanover features nearly 2,800 square feet of living area on the two floors. Indiana Landmarks' research shows that John P. Smith purchased the lot on which the house sits in 1851 from the heirs of John Shannon. Smith sold the property in 1867 to John and Ann Litson, who owned the property until 1872. There were a succession of owners in the late 19th century including Hanover College professor Edward J. Hamilton.

Sekula noted the 19th century porch was recently removed from the house due to safety concerns but materials were retained that could help with restoration. "We dismantled that and saved everything," he said. "All the scroll work is stored in the house right now. The posts are in the back under a car port structure. We had to take it down. It was dangerous. But we did save all those pieces. The obligation of a new buyer would be to put the porch back onto the house."

Sekula added "most of the original windows are there and a lot of the wood trim. You just don't see it because you're focused on paneling, dropped ceilings" and other aspects of the house that overshadow the structure itself. The house also retains some two-panel doors and poplar flooring along with the staircase, which he said is one of the distinguishing features of the house.

Sekula said doing substantially more rehabilitation on the property would cost much more than the $7,500 Indiana Landmarks is requesting from the Commissioners but there needs to be a start somewhere.

"We're treating it incrementally," he said. "If we can get it cleaned and reveal the structure with the hope of finding a preservation-minded buyer that way." He added that depending how that goes, Indiana Landmarks will then determine if it needs to invest more on the structure. "We are treating this as let's do a little bit" with the market currently being strong. The house, currently on the market for $27,000, is something Sekula thinks can't be found in Madison, particularly with the amount of square footage in the Hanover house.

Sekula also noted that other houses in vicinity of 263 East Main Street have recently been rehabilitated so the neighborhood is trending positive and once this house is done, "that block is really going to be turned around."

He hopes seeing that impact will provide impetus toward restoration of other distressed properties in Hanover. "Things are moving in the right direction," he said.

Letting go doesn't mean you have to lose

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Readers: Thank you for all your responses to "Letting Go Is Hard to Do." We have undeniably wonderful parents among our readership. Here are two of my favorite letters.

Dear Annie: This is in response to "Letting Go Is Hard to Do," who was worried about the choices her daughter might be making at college after seeing a questionable bank transaction.

I am also the mom of a college-age student. We have had a joint account ever since my son was a senior in high school.

I made a promise to myself to not allow our joint checking accounts to be a way to peek into his world. Trust me, it is very hard not to look — especially when I am transferring money to his account. If his spending info pops up, I look away and put my hand over so I cannot see.

It is a don't-see-don't-tell trust that I never told him I had in place. He is very independent, and if I'd have questioned things, he would have started to mistrust me. There is always a way teens get around roadblocks; it's called taking cash out of the account and spending it that way or buying a Visa gift card with the cash.

It gets easier as they get older to not look. I encourage you to think about why you need to look at how she spends her money. My son was no angel for a good four to five years. But he trusts me now, and when the really hard/big things come up, he comes to me for comfort and direction, and to ease his fears. Let a little more of the string go, and when your bird flies, you will be rewarded with trust and honesty. — Money and Trust

Dear Annie: I want to be as polite as I can in this reply to the mom who's concerned about her 18-year-old daughter essentially just being an 18-year-old away at college.

With all due respect, Letting Go — because you sound like a great mom and you seem to have a good bond with your daughter — maybe drop the "God's gift" talk, stop thinking about what your religion teaches about birth control and just ask your kid if she's OK and let her know you're there to talk.

She may not be as interested as you are in what God and your religious community's leadership thinks about her sex life. Meanwhile, here on Earth, you're both humans who love each other. Lead with that.

In terms of sex addiction and so-called addictive behaviors, aka symptoms of a disease called addiction, which aren't "behaviors" in an addict but rather compulsions, again, be honest. Talk about it head-on. Don't minimize it if you're truly worried.

And if you're not, let her live her life and keep your opinions to yourself. You can either have a relationship that is close, honest and real or have some mix of hope, denial and religious idealism. But the half-measure of trying to have both almost guarantees the first will be lost, which would be a shame.

Keep your life between you and God, her life between you and her, and trust God to know how to handle the rest. God is too busy caring for billions of souls to really care much about birth control and sex toys. Take God's lead. — Dad of a Teen, Too

Living without my wife

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: My wife of 44 years passed away after a nine-day bout with cancer.

We started dating at 16, went to college together, married at 20 and graduated at 21, when we started our life together for real.

"Sally" passed away two months after her 65th birthday. I will turn 65 in a month. I was to retire in three months, while Sally was already retired. Our house is paid for and sits by a beautiful creek in small-town Georgia, and moving has been suggested. I like it here.

All our plans for traveling and having a life together in retirement disappeared in a matter of days.

We had saved a pile of money to do all we couldn't do until we retired. Now I don't know what to do. I was her George Bailey, and she was my Mary Hatch. I never had a wandering eye. I don't have a long-lost girlfriend from high school. Our circle of close friends is small and mostly live out of town.

My daughter and son are grown and pretty much have their own lives. I refuse to spend the last 20 years alone without female companionship. I liked being married. Single life is not my cup of tea. I know I can't replace my wife. Some accuse me of that.

She was educated, a retired teacher. She knew who Emily Post was and watched Julia Child. Together, we watched "Jeopardy" nightly. She loved to travel, saying, "Travel feeds the soul." She played bridge, volunteered at the hospital and church, and sent food to shut-ins. She would watch football with me and enjoy it if I would watch Hallmark movies with her.

During the pandemic, I began teaching myself guitar, and she would let me practice in the bedroom while she sat in bed reading. She remarked, "I would rather have you with me making a racket than somewhere else causing a racket."

Should I try to forget her now that she is gone and look for another type of person to spend my life with? Should I look for another woman like her? Should I pursue her first cousin with similar qualities who lost her husband last year? Are there women out there like her who are good-hearted and looking for a stable, educated man with whom to have a good time?

How do I connect with them? I can't go back to the neighborhood front-yard football game again, be tackled by her, injure my shoulder and have her be the first girl to come to my house worried about me, which is how our love affair began. Help! — Lost at Potato Creek

Dear Lost: Your love affair sounds like something out of the movies. I am so sorry for your loss. Of course you are lost and confused, and that is understandable. You are not supposed to have all the answers to what the future will look like right now. Find other widowers who can understand what you are going through and help you work through your grief. The healthier you get with your own emotions, the healthier your next relationship will be.

You will never replace your wife. You will now have a new normal, which will look different from your old normal, and that is perfectly natural. Instead of trying to find a replacement for your wife, try to remember all of your memories, which will live inside you for a lifetime.

In Remembrance Of Those Who Passed November 1, 2020 — October 31, 2021

Ornament of Remembrance Reception

Our Ornament of Remembrance reception on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 12 (following the Ladies for Liberty Show at 2 p.m.) will honor these precious persons who forever touched lives and always accompanies families in heart. Death separates love only in presence. For the best and brightest spot on the family Christmas tree, Morgan & Nay will present a crystal ornament bearing that loved one's name and signature dates. Morgan & Nay has invited family members to be our guests at this year's presentation which will follow our Annual Community Christmas Show featuring the Ladies for Liberty.

MORGAN & NAY

Community Christmas Show @ North Madison Christian Church

1400 East State Road 62 – Madison, Indiana

Sunday, December 12, 2021

This year's program will feature a trifecta format. Audience Sing Along of Christmas Carols, 1:30 p.m. Ladies for Liberty Show at 2 p.m. Ornament of Remembrance Reception, after the Ladies for Liberty Show. Inspired by the sound of the Andrew Sisters of the 1940s, the Ladies for Liberty of Louisville, KY exude the apex in patriotic music with their lively repertoire of World War II hits, as well as many popular songs during the Korean and Vietnam Wars. Besides their vibrant vocals, even their costumes, hairstyles and spirited choreography impart that military era. From B*oogie, Woogie Bugle Boy, Oh Johnny, Oh Johnny, Oh* to Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree, the songs convey love messages of the heart, humanize the tribulations of war and thrust "Old Glory" above all else. The group has performed four times at the annual D-Day celebrations in Normandy, France with a fifth appearance scheduled for 2022. Tickets, $10 per, are available at Morgan & Nay Funeral Centre (812-265-5577) and/or at the door. (Venue Site - North Madison Christian Church, 1400 E. State Rd. 62, Madison, IN). Parking lot shuttle service will be available. Hope you can join us for an afternoon of holiday fellowship during this season of love and remembrance.

Trimble pulls away late to beat Shelby

Ogburn sets school record with 24 rebounds

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Tate Ogburn recorded a record-breaking double-double and five players scored in double figures as Trimble County pulled away for an 82-67 win over visiting Shelby County Thursday in boys basketball.

Ogburn, a senior, scored 19 points and grabbed a school-record 24 rebounds to power the Raiders inside, while junior James Thomas Wilcoxson poured in 22 points. Ethan Horn and Hunter Kelly each added 14 points and Dalton Penick scored 13 as Trimble picked up its first win of the season.

"We still got a lot of growing to do, but some of that I think is just getting to know what we expect from each other," Trimble coach Marcus Mumphrey said. "Tate had an incredible game with 24 rebounds but I think everybody was playing for each other and that's a big deal. They finally have grown and have seen what it what it takes to play together. Hopefully this will continue for the rest of the season."

Trimble (1-1) took control of the game early with an impressive 28-4 run that spanned the first two quarters and staked the Raiders to a 34-10 lead. Everything was working during the opening burst as the Raiders clamped down on the Rockets defensively and scored nearly at will.

Shelby County (0-1) closed the first half with 11-straight points as a sign of things to come. The Rockets quickly sliced into the Trimble lead, riding the hot hand of Tyre Bishop to a 28-9 run of their own to pull within 43-38 with 3:53 left in the third quarter.

Trimble teams of the past might have folded under such a Shelby rally. But rather than panic, these Raiders simply went back to work. Penick stopped the Shelby run with a 3-pointer, Ogburn scored five points and Trimble closed the quarter on a 14-4 run of its own to re-establish control.

Trimble eventually built its lead back to 24 (70-46) late in the fourth quarter and cruised to the win.

Watching his team recover from the Rocket haymaker was almost more rewarding than getting the win for Mumphrey.

"We're learning how to finish a game the right way," Mumphrey said. "We still have got a lot of basketball to play, but this is a great night. Everybody played well. I can't think of anything that I'm not happy with.

"The guys are rooting for each other and that's the biggest thing for me, the maturity. That's the most important things that we develop; in the long run, that's even more important than winning and losing," Mumphrey added. "When it's all over, that's what they'll remember most, their chemistry versus how many games they win. That's a big deal for us to develop and I think if we keep doing what we're doing, I think we should have some results here real soon."

Bishop scored 16 points before fouling out to lead Shelby while Dillon Ritchey knocked down four 3-pointers and scored 14 points. Dallas Mercer added 10.

Trimble County travels to Spencer County today and then hosts Kentucky Country Day on Tuesday.

Hanover starts fast, finishes strong to beat Anderson

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Hanover started fast and finished fast to pull away from Anderson and post a 67-52 win in men's basketball in a battle of the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference's two best teams on Wednesday at Collier Arena.

The Panthers scored the first 10 points of the game and, despite Anderson's best efforts to get back into the contest, held that lead for the entire 40 minutes. Any thoughts of a Ravens comeback were dashed when Hanover closed the game on a 24-11 run to put the game away.

It was a fantastic way for the Panthers to open the HCAC portion of their schedule.

"I thought this was a good Division III battle tonight. I think if you appreciate basketball, you appreciate both teams really competing hard against each other," Hanover coach Jon Miller said. "Everybody likes to see a game in the 80s or 90s but you know, sometimes it's a grind in conference play, and you got to be able to win both ways. I thought both teams played incredibly hard and I give Anderson a lot of credit. It was a good battle. We were just fortunate to come out ahead tonight."

Playing in front of a raucous crowd just back from Thanksgiving break, the Panthers couldn't have gotten off to a better start against the team that was picked as the co-favorite along with Hanover in the preseason coaches poll. Ryan Morris and Ty Houston each hit layups for the Panthers and Matt Munoz followed with a 3-pointer. After an Anderson timeout, Munoz drilled another trey for a 10-0 lead.

Hanover's bench reacts after a 3-pointer in the Panthers' win over Anderson on Wednesday.

Hanover never trailed again, but it wasn't easy holding off the Ravens. Anderson responded from that initial Panther burst to score 10 of the next 14 points and get right back into the game.

From there it was a grind as each team hammered away at the other. The Panthers took a six-point lead (30-24) into the half and had to hold on in the second half as Anderson made its run.

"It's always nice to get off to a good start. You're just hoping that you'll be able to continue to do the things that got you there," Miller said. "To (Anderson's) credit, they made a defensive adjustment and it really became a game where buckets were at a premium for us and I really feel like we didn't always do a great job of finishing around the basket. But I was awfully proud of our guys on the defensive end. We'd like to think that our program has teams that can win it on nights where it is a grind. And those guys did that tonight."

Hanover (4-0, 1-0 HCAC) had the lead back into double-digits when Max Greenamoyer scored on a layup to push the Panthers ahead 41-31 with 14:25 to play, but Anderson came right back, cutting the lead to two (41-39) with an eight-point burst, all by Maurice Knight.

Hanover's Hughes, Dattilo named soccer All-Americans

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Josh Hughes

Josie Dattilo

Hanover College's Josh Hughes and Josie Dattilo have each been named to the 2021 NCAA Division III All-America team by the United Soccer Coaches Association.

Hughes, a senior from Lafayette, Louisiana, made history, becoming the first Hanover men's soccer student-athlete to be named to the All-America team when he earned second team accolades. A first team All-Region selection, Hughes was one of only 50 NCAA Division III men's soccer student-athletes to receive the honor.

Hughes played a key role in the Panthers' record-setting season as he appeared in and started all 22 games for Hanover. He led the team in goals (12), assists (6), points (30), shots (76), shots on goal (35), and game winners (4).

For his efforts, Hughes was also named First Team All-Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference.

In addition to Hughes, Evan Redman, a senior midfielder from Louisville, was named to the NCAA Division III Men's All-Region team as a second team selection. Redmon, the HCAC Defensive Player of the Year, helped anchor a back line that allowed just 22 goals all season. He played 1,609 total minutes, starting all 22 games.

The Panthers reached new heights in 2021, recording the program's first-ever NCAA Division III National Tournament victory before advancing to the round of 16 where they saw their magical season come to an end at the hands of 11-time national champion Messiah.

Dattilo, a junior from Montgomery, Ohio, became the fifth Hanover women's player to earn the honor when she was named to the third team.

The HCAC Defensive Player of the Year appeared in and started all 19 games for

The Panthers lost 47-43 at Western Hills on Wednesday then fell 69-33 at Ludlow on Thursday.

Carroll, now 0-2 on the season, travels to Walton-Verona on Tuesday.

Bengals start critical stretch against Chargers

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — For the first time in years, the Cincinnati Bengals are positioned to make some noise in December.

The Bengals (7-4), with offensive playmakers and a defense that coalesced in back-to-back blowout wins, find themselves in the thick of a wide-open AFC playoff race.

Except for the 8-3 Baltimore Ravens. every AFC team has at least four losses, with 12 at .500 or better.

Cincinnati, playing four of its last six games at home, is confident.

"We haven't had that feeling in a long time here," Bengals safety Jessie Bates said. "I think we're ready for it."

The Los Angeles Chargers (6-5), who visit Cincinnati on Sunday, are in that playoff mix despite losing four of the past six games. Their 28-13 loss to the Denver Broncos was full of costly mistakes. They haven't managed to win two straight games since October.

Chargers quarterback Justin Herbert threw two touchdown passes last Sunday but also had two interceptions, one returned 70 yards for a touchdown and the other was in the end zone.

The inconsistency has been hard for the Chargers to explain.

"You'd like to have the same mindset going in regardless of whether we won or lost or whether you had a good game or a bad game," Chargers running back Austin Ekeler said.

"We are human, so we feel the emotions so we do our best to come in and have that consistent mindset that it's a new week, it's a new opponent."

The Bengals, looking for their first playoff appearance since 2015, are trying not to look ahead — too much.

"You know, we believe that we absolutely have the talent and the ability to end up playing deep into the postseason," Cincinnati offensive lineman Jonah Williams said.

"So that's our goal. It's hard to sit there and think about it because it can make you pat yourself on the back a little bit, and that's not something we want to do."

The Bengals, known more for their passing game behind second-year quarterback Joe Burrow, relied on another Joe — veteran running back Joe Mixon — for the spark in the past two games. Mixon had back-to-back 100-yard games for the first time since 2019, rolling for a career-high 165 and two touchdowns in the 41-10 rout of Pittsburgh last Sunday.

Cincinnati has worked for the past couple of years rebuilding their defense, and the efforts are paying off. Defensive end Trey Hendrickson has 10 1/2 sacks and has forced three fumbles. Defensive end Sam Hubbard has seven sacks, and tackle Larry Ogunjobi has 3 1/2. The pass rush has created more opportunities for the secondary to make big plays. Cornerback Eli Apple has interceptions in the past two games, and cornerback Mike Hilton had a 24-yard, pick-6 against former teammate Ben Roethlisberger.

Indy's Taylor could be in for big game

BY KRISTIE RIEKEN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — Jonathan Taylor didn't have a great game for the Indianapolis Colts last week and still finished with 83 yards rushing and a touchdown.

On Sunday, the NFL's leading rusher will have a great chance to bounce back when he faces the Houston Texans (2-9), who have one of the worst run defenses in the NFL.

Taylor is the league's only 1,000-yard rusher this season with 1,204 yards and his 14 TD runs also top the NFL. He is tied with Nick Chubb for the highest per carry average (5.8) among players with more than 10 rushes and has a league-high 10 rushes for 20 or more yards.

Taylor has six 100-yard rushing games this year, highlighted by a season-best 185 yards and four touchdowns in a win over Buffalo two weeks ago for the Colts (6-6).

The Texans rank 31st in the NFL by allowing 135.6 yards rushing a game and Taylor ran for 145 yards and two scores to lead the Colts to a 31-3 win over them earlier this season.

"He has everything you're looking for in a great running back when you have a commitment to the running game like they do," Houston defensive coordinator Lovie Smith said.

"He has size, he has great vision in the hole, he can run in between the tackles, he's as fast as anybody on the field. It's a big challenge. We have to be ... gap sound. It's about pursuing, getting as many guys to the ball as possible when you play a guy like him."

Limiting Taylor has been a key to stopping the Colts this season as they've won each game where he's eclipsed the 100-yard mark and lost every game where he didn't.

Tampa Bay beat the Colts 38-31 last week in part by forcing them to throw the ball. This time, the Colts are hoping to find better balance.

"I felt like we opened up our offense because they stacked the box and we had to get them out of that," quarterback Carson Wentz said.

After playing 12 games and an eagerly anticipated bye week looming after Sunday's game, the AFC playoff picture is taking shape.

And while the Colts remain in the playoff hunt, if the season ended today, they'd be left out. But with five games left, a strong finish could get them into the playoffs for the second straight season and the third time in coach Frank Reich's four-year tenure.

For now, though, the Colts are simplifying their focus.

"There's definitely a small, small window of error and the guys know that," 2020 All-Pro defensive tackle DeForest Buckner said. "All we can do is focus on today. So, to get to the playoffs, we have to get through the Texans first."

Indianapolis receiver T.Y. Hilton has been dominant against the Texans over the years. The veteran has 1,798 yards and 11 touchdowns in 19 games against Houston and the Colts have won 13 of those games.

The four-time Pro Bowler resurfaced as a key option for Wentz last week and, presuming he's healthy, could be in for a big game Sunday.

Hilton had four catches for a season-best 80 yards in his first matchup with the Texans this season.

The Texans returned to their facility Thursday after practice and all other in-person activities were canceled Wednesday on the advice of their medical team because some players weren't feeling well.

Divergent views point to lengthy lockout

BY STEPHEN HAWKINS
and RONALD BLUM
AP BASEBALL WRITER

ARLINGTON, Texas — Hours into Major League Baseball's first work stoppage in 26 years, Commissioner Rob Manfred and union head Tony Clark presented diametrically opposed views of each side's negotiating positions that point to a lengthy lockout.

In separate news conferences less than a day into baseball's ninth work stoppage, Manfred said the union's proposal for greater free agency and wider salary arbitration would damage small-market teams.

Clark, the first former player to head the union, accused Manfred of "misrepresentations" in his letter to fans explaining the lockout, and said "it would have been beneficial to the process to have spent as much time negotiating in the room as it appeared it was spent on the letter."

"It's unnecessary to continue the dialogue," Clark said of the lockout. "At the first instance in some time of a bumpy water, the recourse was a strategic decision to lock players out."

The dispute threatens the start of spring training on Feb. 16 and opening day on March 31.

In many ways, after 26 1/2 years of labor peace the sides have reverted to the bitter squabbling that marked eight work stoppages from 1972-95, including a 7 1/2-month strike that wiped out the 1994 World Series.

Owners locked out players at 12:01 a.m. Thursday following the expiration of the sport's five-year collective bargaining agreement.

"If you play without an agreement, you are vulnerable to a strike at any point in time," Manfred said. "What happened in 1994 is the MLBPA picked August, when we were most vulnerable because of the proximity of the large revenue dollars associated with the postseason. We wanted to take that option away and try to force the parties to deal with the issues and get an agreement now."

Players gained salary arbitration in 1974 and free agency two years later, and most of the previous disputes centered on the rise of big salaries caused by both, along with demands, mostly by small- and middle-market owners, to control costs and increase their competitive ability.

Management gained an ever-increasing series of restraints over the last two decades, such as a luxury tax on high payrolls, leading to a decrease in average salary during the latter years of the most recent labor deal.

Now players want more liberalized free agency and arbitration, leading to a confrontation.

"It's a whole list of topics that they've told us they will not negotiate," said Bruce Meyer, the players' chief lawyer. "They will not agree, for example, to expand salary arb eligibility. They will not agree to any path for any player to achieve free agency earlier. They will not agree to anything that would allow players to have additional ways to get service time to combat service-time manipulation. They told us on all of those things they will not agree."

Since 1976, players can become free agents after six seasons of major league service. The players' association proposed starting with the 2023-24 offseason that it changes to six years or five years and age 30.5, with the age in the second option dropping to 29.5 starting in 2025-26.

Players want arbitration eligibility to decrease to two years of service, its level until the mid-1980s.

Central to the strife is the union's anger over a larger number of teams in recent seasons jettisoning veterans in favor of rebuilding while accumulating prospects. Teams sometimes conclude rebuilding — the players call it tanking — is a preferred strategy for long-term success, even though it can rankle their fans.

"We feel our proposals would positively affect competitive balance, competitive integrity," Meyer said. "We've all seen in recent years the problem with teams that don't seem to be trying their hardest to win games or put the best teams on the field."

In the signing scramble ahead of the lockout, teams committed $1 billion to contracts on Wednesday, including six nine-figure agreements that raised the total to nine in the last month and total spending to $2.5 billion since Oct. 1.

"The fact that this year there seems to be more activity sooner by clubs in free agency than a normal year raises more questions than it answers about all the other years," Meyer said. "One good week of free agency doesn't address all the negative trends that we've seen."

MLB would keep existing free-agency provision or change eligibility to age 29.5.

"We already have teams in smaller markets that struggle to compete," Manfred said. "Shortening the period of time that they control players makes it even harder for them to compete. It's also bad for fans in those markets. The most negative reaction we have is when a player leaves via free agency. We don't see that, making it earlier, available earlier, we don't see that as a positive."

Clark spoke at the hotel where negotiations broke off and Manfred about 14 miles away at Globe Life Field, home of the Texas Rangers.

"The players' association, as is their right, made an aggressive set of proposals in May, and they have refused to budge from the core of those proposals," Manfred said. "Things like a shortened reserve period, a $100 million reduction in revenue sharing and salary arbitration for the whole two-year class are bad for the sport."

when Greenamoyer knocked down a 3-pointer and the Panthers slowly pulled away once again. It was still a 5-point game (52-47) after a Knight basket with 7:38 to go, but Hanover's defense forced two shot clock violations down the stretch and the Panthers eventually led by enough to put the game away.

"We're not really trying to turn people over per se, we're trying to outlast them. We're trying to make them end up with the shot that we want them to take," Miller said of his team's defense.

"And we try to do it without fouling them and putting them on the free throw line. And I thought by and large, we did that a lot."

Anderson (4-2, 0-1 HCAC) ended up shooting 49% (21-for-43) for the game but Hanover was better, hitting 54% (29-for-54) of its shots, including 6-of-13 from 3-point range.

Munoz scored 23 points to lead the Panthers while Jack Wininger came off the bench to score 11. Greenamoyer finished with 10 points and six assists.

BLOOMINGTON — Reserve Diamond Johnson scored 19 points, and No. 2 North Carolina State used an 11-2 run late in the fourth quarter to pull away for a 66-58 win over No. 6 Indiana on Thursday night in the Big Ten/ACC Challenge.

Kayla Jones scored 17 points, Raina Perez had 13 and star center Elissa Cunane battled through foul trouble to score 11 for the Wolfpack (7-1), who haven't lost since a season-opening defeat to No. 1 South Carolina.

"U-G-L-Y. We ain't got no alibi," N.C. State head coach Wes Moore said. "It was ugly, OK? But proud of this team, proud of the way they battled."

Mackenzie Holmes scored 24 points and Ali Patberg had 10 for the Hoosiers (5-2), whose only two losses have come against teams ranked in the top 10. Indiana also came up short against Stanford.

The Hoosiers led 23-21 at halftime and kept it close throughout, moving within 48-47 on Aleksa Gulbe's 3-pointer with 3:44 remaining. But Jones responded with a 3 to start N.C. State's decisive run, and the Wolfpack extended their lead to 59-49 on Perez's two free throws with 53 seconds left.

"It felt like we had every chance to win this game tonight," Indiana coach Teri Moren said. "Unfortunately we just didn't hit enough shots."

N.C. State shot 41.8% from the field and held Indiana to 33.8% shooting. The Wolfpack also outshot the Hoosiers from 3-point range, hitting 35.3% to Indiana's 29.2%.

The teams combined for 35 fouls, and Cunane fouled out late.

"We were in a lot of foul trouble and had to adjust a little bit," Moore said. "Second half, maybe we did a little better job of it. But it was tough."

Freshmen lead Notre Dame women past Michigan State

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Freshman Sonia Citron scored a career-high 29 points, classmate Olivia Miles missed a triple-double by two assists and No. 24 Notre Dame edged Michigan State 76-71 in the Big Ten/ACC Challenge on Thursday night.

Miles had 11 points and 11 rebounds for her third double-double for the Fighting Irish (7-1), who are 7-1 in the challenge and 12-9 against Michigan State. Dara Mabrey scored 10 points and Maya Dodson had six blocks. Citron was 9 of 12 from the field with three 3-pointers and 8 of 8 from the line.

Nia Clouden led the Spartans (6-3), who are 6-7 in the challenge, with 20 points for her sixth straight 20-point game. She also had six rebounds, six assists and three steals. Freshman Matilda Ekh added a career-high 17 points, Moira Joiner had 14 and Alyza Winston 12.

Winston and Clouden produced an 8-0 run to help Michigan State take a 23-21 lead after one quarter. Citron had a 3 in a 9-0 run and the Irish led 36-34 at halftime.

The lead was 55-50 after three quarters and Citron scored four points and Miles had a layup in a 6-0 run for a 65-55 lead midway through the fourth. The Spartans couldn't get closer than five after that as Citron hit a 3 and four free throws in the last 2 1/2 minutes.

Notre Dame had a 45-34 rebounding advantage and Michigan State, despite going 10 for 25 from 3-point range, shot just 36% after coming in making half its shots.

LEXINGTON — Rhyne Howard scored 27 points, Dre'una Edwards had a double-double with six blocks and No. 16 Kentucky rolled over West Virginia 83-60 on Wednesday in the Big 12/SEC Challenge.

Edwards had 19 points and 10 rebounds for the Wildcats (5-1) and Jada Walker scored 11 points. Howard was 5 of 7 from 3-point range and had seven rebounds, four assists and three steals.

Kentucky was 11 of 19 behind the arc, shot 51% (29 of 57) overall and had a 43-28 rebounding advantage with 10 blocks.

Trailing 17-16 after one quarter, five different players hit 3-pointers in the second when the Wildcats went 5 of 7 and took a 40-31 lead. Howard had 10 points in the third when the lead was pushed to 62-45.

West Virginia (4-2) was 7 of 16 in the first quarter with three 3s and finished with four 3s and 23 of 62 (37%).

Kirsten Dean scored 20 points and Esmery Martinez 14 for the Mountaineers, who dropped out of the Top 25 after losing to BYU by one point last week.

Engstler helps No. 10 Louisville women rout No. 12 Michigan

BY GARY B. GRAVES
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE — Emily Engstler and No. 10 Louisville absorbed Michigan's initial charge before quickly answering with a furious pace that earned them their most impressive win this season.

Engstler had 18 points and 14 rebounds, Kianna Smith added 17 points and the Cardinals used a 25-2 burst over the first and second quarters to run past No. 12 Michigan 70-48 on Thursday night in the Big Ten/ACC Challenge.

"We knew they were a very physical team and we wanted to match that intensity from the jump," Smith said. "And especially coming off that Arizona loss, we knew this was the next best team we were going to see and we wanted to make a statement."

The Cardinals (6-1) initially struggled to find their footing with three traveling calls in the early minutes and were a step behind the Wolverines defensively in trailing 7-2. They took off from there with 13 unanswered points, including consecutive 3s by Smith, for a 15-9 lead entering the second quarter before pulling away to their sixth consecutive victory.

A 12-0 run made it 27-9 just three minutes in as Michigan missed 12 of 13 shots during one stretch. Louisville scored the final nine points of the half for a 24-point cushion.

Engstler made 8 of 15 from the field and 2 of 4 from long range to post her second double-double this season. Smith was 4 of 8 on 3s and 6 of 13 overall to score in double figures for the fifth consecutive game. Hailey Van Lith added 10 points for the Cardinals.

A 12-0 run made it 27-9 just three minutes in as Michigan missed 12 of 13 shots during one stretch. Louisville scored the final nine points of the half for a 24-point cushion.

Louisville not only controlled the boards 39-26, it scored 32 points off turnovers and 16 second-chance points against a Michigan squad holding opponents to 35% shooting and 52 points per game. All it took was shaking off those early miscues in the Cardinals' return home after a three-game West coast swing.

"Coach specifically said before this game not to let little things bother us and to make sure that if something goes wrong, we keep our heads up," Engstler said. "I think that we just took it to heart and it's something that I've been personally work on working on."

Naz Hillmon had 12 points and Emily Kiser 10 for the Wolverines (7-1), who committed 24 turnovers and shot 37% while finishing 21 points below their average of 69.3 coming in. Hillmon was 5 of 9 from the field and grabbed eight rebounds, but wasn't a big factor.

"Their defense was really good, their length really bothered us," Michigan coach Kim Barnes Arico said. "They were sending multiple players at Naz and causing some traffic inside. We couldn't really hit any outside shots to relieve that pressure inside."

BIG PICTURE

Michigan: The Wolverines' good start quickly dissolved into a deep hole as Louisville overwhelmed them on both ends. They rebounded from 2-of-11 shooting in the second quarter to make 48% after halftime, but things were out of hand by then. The Wolverines were beaten 15-6 on the offensive glass alone.

Louisville: A Cardinals defense that entered holding opponents to just under 43 points per game turned it up a notch against the Wolverines, who finally broke 40 points with 6:08 remaining. Their big run covered 11:25, with Engstler showing a wicked first step on several drives to the basket. Olivia Cochran, Mykasa Robinson and Liz Dixon each grabbed five rebounds.

The Cardinals' physicality, particularly on the glass, pleased coach Jeff Walz the most.

"We knew it was going to be a physical game from watching them on film," he said. "When they shoot it, they're going after it for us to hold them to six offensive boards. I think it's really impressive."

Big Ten tilt: Michigan chases playoff bid, title vs. Iowa

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Iowa opened this season as the trendy pick to finish second in the Big Ten West. Michigan was unranked in the preseason poll and wasn't even supposed to contend for the East Division title.

So much for predictions.

Two of the conference's traditional powers will play Saturday in Indianapolis for their first conference crowns since sharing the title in 2004 — and in Michigan's case a possible playoff bid.

It's the title game almost nobody expected.

"A lot of people were pretty low on us," Iowa safety Jack Koerner said. "They were saying we were overrated, things like that. We knew who we were, we knew our identity as a team."

Outsiders didn't think much of the second-ranked Wolverines (11-1, 8-1, No. 2 CFP), either. Lingering questions about coach Jim Harbaugh's future prompted him to accept a pay cut and change defensive coordinators after going a dismal 2-4 in a fanless 2020 season.

Prognosticators didn't believe much would change. Narrow escapes against Rutgers and Nebraska and what seemed like a disastrous loss to Michigan State only reinforced those notions.

"There was a lot of noise on the outside," center Andrew Vastardis said. "But on the inside, we trusted each other, trusted the coaches."

It made a difference.

The Wolverines rebounded from their only loss with three straight wins. T hen, just when the critics figured they'd lose yet again to archrival Ohio State, Michigan surprised everyone except themselves with a dominant performance against the Buckeyes to clinch its first trip to the Big Ten title game, which began in 2011.

Michigan inexplicably finds itself one win away from Harbaugh's first Big Ten title and potentially two wins away from a January return to Indy for a shot at its first national championship since 1997.

"Everything we envisioned, all the goals as a defense, all the goals as a team we envisioned, we're accomplishing those things," linebacker Josh Ross said. "Everything's in front of us and now it's just so exciting to be in this opportunity this week."

Korener and his Iowa teammates understand.

But instead of cashing it in following a demoralizing 24-7 home loss against Purdue, a 20-point loss at Wisconsin two weeks later and a shoulder injury that sidelined quarterback Spencer Petras against Northwestern, the 15th-ranked Hawkeyes (10-2, 7-2, No. 13 CFP) rallied.

Backup quarterback Alex Padilla won three straight before Petras returned in the second half last weekend and bailed Iowa out of a 15-point deficit at Nebraska. Wisconsin's loss at Minnesota sealed the division title and now the Hawkeyes believe they can end their title drought.

"November football tends to be the most important time, and right now it shows for us," Hawkeyes running back Tyler Goodson said. "We're undefeated in November. We've been strong. We've faced a lot of adversity, whether it's losing two games in a row, or the injuries we've had. No matter what it is, we find a way to fight back."

THE HANGOVER?

Some wonder how the Wolverines will react to last week's emotional win, their first in a decade over the Buckeyes and just their second in 17 meetings. While fans stormed the field and Michigan savored the postgame party, Harbaugh said this week has been all business. There's a good reason for it.

"There's not one dude on this team that has a ring," quarterback Cade McNamara said.

Harbaugh also has decided to give the $500,000 he's already earned in bonus money and any additional cash will be used to help reimburse the university's athletic department employees who took voluntary or mandatory pay reductions during the COVID-19 pandemic.

RECORD RATE

Iowa is well-known for producing stout defenses under longtime coach Kirk Ferentz. And in a league full of suffocating units, this year's defense stands apart for major reason — takeaways.

The Hawkeyes lead the Football Bowl Subdivision with 22 interceptions and are tied for third with 28 overall turnovers. Eleven players picked off at least one pass this season, and with two more interceptions, Iowa can break the single-season school record set in 1986 and matched in 1987 and 2008.

THANKS, BRO

Michigan's revamped defense delivered against the Buckeyes and Harbaugh credited the addition of new defensive coordinator Mike Macdonald for the turnaround.

When Harbaugh started searching for a replacement for veteran defensive coordinator Don Brown, he called his brother. Baltimore Ravens coach John Harbaugh recommended Macdonald, his linebackers coach.

"He said, 'I've got the guy for you,' " Jim Harbaugh said. "I talked to a lot of people, listened to a lot of people that I trust in the game of football, but none I value more than my brother's opinion. And, he was right."

Elliott extends run as NASCAR's most popular

BY JENNA FRYER
AP AUTO RACING WRITER

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Chase Elliott held on to one of his NASCAR titles Thursday night when fans voted him most popular driver for the fourth consecutive year.

Bill Elliott began his run as NASCAR's most popular driver in 2018, the first year of Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s retirement. Earnhardt had won the most popular award every year since 2003, the season Bill Elliott asked for his name to be removed from the ballot.

Elliott was both the reigning Cup champion and most popular driver this season, but he was ultimately beaten by new Hendrick Motorsports teammate Kyle Larson for the Cup title. At the season-ending awards ceremony at the Music City Center, the National Press Association declared Elliott winner of the fan-decided most popular award.

"I just can't thank the fans across the country enough," said Elliot. "I was really mind-blown on a few occasions this year of that support, and to see it firsthand, you know, I see the T-shirts and all that stuff is noticed. Looking forward to '22 to make all those folks proud."

Elliott began his run as NASCAR's most popular driver in 2018, the first year of Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s retirement. Earnhardt had won the most popular award every year since 2003, the season Bill Elliott asked for his name to be removed from the ballot.

Elliott was beloved and voters selected "Awesome Bill From Dawsonville," Georgia, their favorite a record 16 times. Earnhardt won it 15 times and Chase Elliott claimed the throne when Earnhardt retired.

His fourth victory was again backed by a legion of Elliott fans in their Georgia hometown, and it staved off a challenge by teammate Larson. Elliott has remained extremely popular — his fans vilify any rival who dares to tangle with Elliott — but Larson has built a strong legion of supporters in his first year driving for Hendrick.

Larson won 11 times in the Cup Series, broke Jeff Gordon's 20-year record for most laps led in a season, and won Rick Hendrick's record-extending 14th championship. Larson dethroned Elliott to claim his first Cup.

Larson couldn't knock Elliott from most popular, though, as Elliott's ardent supporters turned out even in a new voting format. The NMPA only opened voting on Nov. 9 — after Larson had already won the championship — and the brief voting period ended Dec. 1. Fans could vote once daily online or via mobile app, but votes shared on Facebook and/or Twitter counted twice.

The most popular driver award was first presented in 1949, to Curtis Turner, at the end of NASCAR's inaugural season. The award has been administered by the NMPA and presented annually by the organization since 1983, and it is the only major NASCAR award determined solely by a fan vote.

Notre Dame set to promote Freeman to head coach

BY RALPH D. RUSSO
AP COLLEGE FOOTBALL WRITER

Notre Dame is working on a deal to promote defensive coordinator Marcus Freeman to head coach to replace Brian Kelly, a person with knowledge of the situation told The Associated Press on Wednesday night.

The person spoke on condition of anonymity because nothing had been finalized, though the first piece of Notre Dame's plan to regroup after Kelly left for LSU earlier this week had already fallen into place.

Offensive coordinator Tommy Rees informed Notre Dame he would remain with the Fighting Irish instead of joining Kelly in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. Notre Dame released a video on Twitter of Rees telling the team he was staying put.

The next step is elevating the 35-year-old Freeman, who would become the second Black head football coach at Notre Dame after Tyrone Willingham (2002-04).

The person told AP that Kelly also had interest in bringing Freeman to LSU. Kelly left Notre Dame after 12 seasons and with the Fighting Irish still in contention for a spot in the College Football Playoff. He was introduced Wednesday as the Tigers' coach.

Notre Dame athletic director Jack Swarbrick, who was scheduled to attend a CFP expansion meeting in Dallas, instead spent Wednesday in South Bend, Indiana, meeting with Rees and Freeman.

The 29-year-old Rees, a former Notre Dame quarterback, returned to the Irish as quarterbacks coach in 2017 and was promoted to offensive coordinator in 2020.

Freeman, 35, joined Kelly's staff this year after being hired away from Cincinnati. Landing Freeman, who was also being pursued by LSU last offseason, was considered a major victory for Kelly and Notre Dame.

Freeman, a former Ohio State linebacker, is considered a rising star in college coaching and in his short time with the Irish he has played a major role in assembling a recruiting class that's ranked No. 5 in the country by 247 Sports with two weeks to go before signing day.

On the field, Freeman and Rees have helped the Irish go 11-1 in what was expected to be a rebuilding year after last season's playoff appearance. Notre Dame is sixth in the CFP rankings.

Freeman spent four seasons at Cincinnati as defensive coordinator for Luke Fickell, helping the Bearcats become a playoff contender.

The Bearcats are fourth in the CFP rankings heading into the American Athletic Conference championship game on Saturday and have a chance to become the first team from outside the Power Five conferences to reach the playoff.

Troy hires Kentucky assistant Sumrall as head coach

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TROY, Ala. — Troy has hired Kentucky co-defensive coordinator Jon Sumrall as its head coach, the school announced Thursday night.

Sumrall replaces Chip Lindsey, who was fired on Nov. 21 with one game left in his third season.

Sumrall, 39, was assistant head coach at Troy from 2015-17 under Neal Brown, who had been Kentucky's offensive coordinator. He will be introduced at a news conference Monday.

"Jon Sumrall exceeded all the criteria we had when searching for a new leader for our football program," athletic director Brent Jones said. "He is a proven winner and a dynamic recruiter that will continue to build upon our championship legacy."

Sumrall coached inside linebackers for Kentucky under Mark Stoops and was promoted to co-defensive coordinator last spring. Sumrall departed Troy for Mississippi before the 2018 season and returned to Kentucky, his alma mater, the following year.

He has also had stints as an assistant at San Diego and Tulane.

GIVE. GROW. GRANT.
Read more about one of four endowments recently established by individuals and families GIVING today to GROW assets for future GRANTS.

JOSEPH T. AND RUBY W. CRAIG FUND FOR LEARNING

This Donor Advised Fund was created to honor Joseph and Ruby Craig by their daughters Nancy Jacobs, and her husband Curt, Martha Clancy, and her husband Jack, and Margaret Hillery. Joe and Ruby recognized the importance of learning, and as teachers, they helped educate thousands of Jefferson County children. Growing up in Jefferson and Scott Counties, they learned skills from their parents that proved invaluable in supporting their families, neighbors, and communities. From gardening to plumbing, food preservation to ham radio, and sewing to small machine repair, Joe and Ruby were always prepared and willing to lend their help. More importantly, they were always willing to take the time to help others learn a needed skill so that in the future, they would be prepared to help themselves and those around them. To continue this legacy, the family will annually select the organizations and projects to benefit from the fund's grant dollars, with an emphasis on supporting learning opportunities.

Please call Bill Barnes at 812-274-0241 for information about establishing a fund to support what matters most to you and those you love.

Young makes key free throws, leads Hawks past Pacers 114-111

BY PHILLIP B. WILSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Trae Young made two crucial free throws in the final seconds of a hard-fought victory on Wednesday night, but lamented a turnover that put the Atlanta Hawks in a precarious last-second situation.

The Hawks had a one-point lead when Young lost control of the basketball. Indiana Pacers rookie Chris Duarte came up with the steal, but was unable to convert a contested layup that had his bench and coach Rick Carlisle screaming for a foul.

Young was subsequently fouled with 1.2 seconds remaining and made the final two of his 33 points for a 114-111 road win.

"I could have done better closing it out," Young said. "I can't have a turnover at the end to give them a chance to win."

After the final buzzer, Carlisle continued to yell at referees about the lack of a call on the Duarte drive.

"The last play was unfortunate," Carlisle said. "Those of you that saw it saw (Kevin) Huerter pull him down, pull the jersey down while he's going up. That was clearly a foul. I'm not sure why it wasn't called."

Huerter disagreed, albeit with a wry grin.

"I never foul," Huerter said. "I've never fouled anybody in my life."

For much of the night, Carlisle watched his players struggle to stop Young, who also had 10 assists and eight rebounds for the Hawks, who shot 51.2% (44 of 86), including 16 of 33 on 3-pointers. The Pacers made just 10 of 33 from beyond the arc.

"I'm getting to my spots and I've worked really hard on making my jumpers," Young said. "And the other guys are making plays, too If they don't make plays, I don't get as many good looks."

Young found Huerter for several open looks as Huerter finished with 19 points, and John Collins scored 14.

"He operates really well with Trae," said Hawks assistant coach Chris Jent. "It's good to see."

Malcolm Brogdon led the Pacers with 27 points.

"We had defensive breakdowns and they closed the game out," Brogdon said.

Domantas Sabonis scored 22 points and grabbed 10 rebounds, and Myles Turner had 17 points and nine rebounds.

"I just thought we didn't play with the force we needed to play with," Carlisle said.

The Hawks were hot from the outset, hitting 8 of 10 3s, but the Pacers stayed close on 17-of-31 shooting. Atlanta led 45-42 midway through the second quarter, but Turner sank a pair of free throws to make it 51-all with 4:26 remaining in the first half.

The visitors closed the first half with a 12-4 surge to take a 65-57 lead into the break. The last basket punctuated the run as Young fed Collins for an alley-oop dunk in the final seconds.

Atlanta made 25 of 42 shots (59.5%), including 10 of 15 3s, in the first half.

Young hit a step-back jumper to provide the Hawks' largest lead at 74-62 with 7:45 remaining in the third. The Pacers rallied with a 15-2 run to nudge ahead. Indiana was ahead 88-87 entering the fourth.

Suns push past Pistons, win franchise record 18th straight

BY BOB HUHN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHOENIX — Cam Johnson and Cameron Payne both scored 19 points to lead the Phoenix Suns to their franchise-record 18th win in a row, beating the Detroit Pistons 114-103 on Thursday night.

Johnson and Payne sparked a stellar effort from the Suns bench, which finished with 48 points. Deandre Ayton had 17 points and 12 rebounds as Phoenix improved to 19-3 for the season.

"I haven't talked about streaks of any kind just because we have been so focused on improving," Suns coach Monty Williams said of the run that's lasted more than a month. "But it is really cool to be a part of something like that."

Phoenix won despite not having leading scorer Devin Booker for the first time this season. The two-time All-Star suffered a left hamstring injury in the second quarter of Tuesday's game against the Golden State Warriors.

Seven Suns scored in double figures in a balanced effort. Phoenix shot 54% from the field.

"It is hard to win in this league and we are not satisfied but it is special," Williams said. "To do it in front of our fan base, in a special city like this with the history of this franchise is pretty cool and I want our guys to enjoy it."

Phoenix shot 76% in the second quarter and led 69-51 by halftime. Payne had 11 points in the second quarter.

The Pistons fought back in the third on a 17-0 run to get within 80-79 after a 3-pointer by rookie Cade Cunningham. It appeared that Detroit tied it at 82 moments later, but a 3-point shot by Hamidou Diallo was ruled to have come after the 24-second clock expired.

"When we play like that, we can win games," Pistons center Isaiah Stewart said.

Phoenix stopped the rally when Payne hit two free throws and Landry Shamet made a 3, enabling Phoenix to take a six-point lead after three.

"We came out there and just did our job as usual," Payne said about the bench.

Detroit did get within five points in the fourth quarter a few times, the last with 2:57 remaining at 104-99 on Saddiq Bey's 3-pointer, but Jae Crowder connected from behind the arc to keep the Pistons chasing. Chris Paul finished with 12 points and 12 assists.

Don't Put Your Money Under the Mattress - There Are Other Options

"Numerous options exist for a safe place to keep your money; the secret is finding the best return without any exposure to risk." Steve Dybwad

Layin It On The Line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

Insulating your money against inflation, theft or catastrophe is as simple as taking it out from underneath your mattress and opening a savings account. The three most common are transactional savings accounts, money market accounts, and certificates of deposit. Two alternative accounts are high yield savings and specialty savings accounts. They all operate under the same premise: money given to the bank will earn interest.

Traditional Transactional Savings Accounts

The simplest way to store money with a financial institution is to open a traditional savings account with a small minimum deposit. If the minimum is maintained, the account holder usually avoids fees. Shop around and compare factors like initial deposit and balance requirements, interest rates, and other fees. While being highly liquid makes it easy to withdraw cash and move funds between accounts, they typically have the lowest interest rates. Accounts are federally insured through the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) or the National Credit Union Association (NCUA), protecting your savings from bank failures.

High Yield Savings Account

High yield savings accounts offer interest rates usually 20 to 25 times higher than the national average for transactional savings accounts. While potentially available at your local bank, the highest interest rates are typically offered by online banks. Electronic transfers between institutions are speedy and straightforward, making it easy to move your funds if needed. FDIC or NCUA also insures them. Keep in mind that banks offering high yield savings accounts do not typically provide checking accounts and other services like ATM cards.

Specialty Savings Account

Specialty savings accounts are specific to a particular savings goal. These include accounts you can open for children like savings accounts, student accounts, or 529 college savings accounts. Also included are home down payment savings accounts, health savings accounts, and traditional or Roth IRA's. These accounts generate interest and have either low or no maintenance costs. Be aware of strict and potentially costly regulations related to early withdrawal of funds. There are also specifics concerning who can open what type of account.

Money Market Account

Money market accounts typically offer higher interest rates than traditional savings accounts, .02% higher on average. This type of account is special in that you can write checks and use a debit card, like a checking account. However, there are limits to the amount of money and the number of withdrawals allowed. It's also not uncommon for higher minimum balance requirements and fees associated with money market accounts.

Certificate of Deposit (CD) FDIC Insured

A certificate of deposit, or CD, is an account with a fixed interest rate, term length, and maturity date. The fixed date means funds cannot be accessed early without penalty. These accounts typically pay higher rates than traditional savings accounts and are less liquid. The risk is very low, and the return is guaranteed, making it a safe place to store funds that you plan to use in the future.

Each of these accounts can help achieve your savings goals. Evaluate the pros and cons of each depending on your goals and financial situation. Be sure to explore various institutions for the best rates possible, and as always, consult a trusted financial advisor regarding any questions you may have.

Grizzlies rout Thunder by 73 to set NBA mark for win margin

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — The Memphis Grizzlies broke the NBA record for margin of victory Thursday night, beating the Oklahoma City Thunder 152-79.

The 73-point spread easily topped the previous mark, which was Cleveland's 68-point win over Miami. The Cavaliers beat the Heat 148-80 on Dec. 17, 1991.

Memphis used 12 players and nine of them reached double figures in scoring, with Jaren Jackson Jr.'s 27 points leading the way for the Grizzlies. Memphis was without its best player, injured guard Ja Morant.

It was 72-36 at halftime and the Grizzlies just kept adding to the lead, eventually pulling ahead by as many as 78 points.

The Grizzlies set a franchise record for shooting, making 62.5% of their shots. De'Anthony Melton scored 19 points, Santi Aldama had 18 and John Konchar added 17 for the Grizzlies — and none of those three players even started.

RAPTORS 97, BUCKS 93

TORONTO — Fred VanVleet scored 29 points, Pascal Siakam had 20 and Toronto took advantage of Giannis Antetokounmpo's absence to stop Milwaukee's eight-game winning streak.

Antetokounmpo was out because of soreness in his right calf, a day after he scored 40 points as the Bucks beat Charlotte 127-125. The two-time NBA MVP sat out for the first time since Nov. 12, when he missed an overtime loss at Boston because of a sprained right ankle.

Scottie Barnes scored 13 points as the Raptors won for the first time in four games and snapped a five-game home losing streak, their longest since January 2011.

Jrue Holiday scored 26 points and Khris Middleton had 22 for the Bucks, who lost for the first time since a Nov. 14 defeat at Atlanta.

Patton lifts Cleveland State past NKU

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEVELAND — Torrey Patton had 20 points as Cleveland State topped Northern Kentucky 72-58 on Thursday night in a Horizon League opening matchup for both teams.

D'Moi Hodge had 15 points for Cleveland State (5-2, 1-0), which earned its fifth consecutive win. Deante Johnson added 14 points. Broc Finstuen had six rebounds.

Marques Warrick had 14 points for the Norse (2-4, 0-1). David Bohm added 10 points. Adrian Nelson had eight rebounds.

Hubertas Pivorius entered as the Norse's second-leading scorer averaging 11 points per game. He finished 1-for-5 shooting from beyond the 3-point line and scored three points.

IUPUI KNOCKS OFF DETROIT

INDIANAPOLIS — Madut Akec had a career-high 20 points as Detroit easily beat IUPUI 69-45 on Thursday night in a Horizon League opener.
